Builders Corner - Richard Holcomb

Richard bought this Ford truck when he was only 16 years old. The place....a ditch on the side of a road where the previous owner swerved to compensate for his 450 pound pig's motion in the bed of the truck. Richard knew he had to have this vehicle. The price... one calf. His dad thought he was crazy. This was his work truck for five decades! Until 1972 this was used on his ranch. After he moved to town he worked in construction. In the back those days one could find tools and concrete. Fifty four years later, Richard, still crazy, is driving, restoring and exhibiting this very same truck.

From an original flathead engine he switched it out to a 350 Chevrolet with turbo 350 transmission. It has been painted four times. He rebuilt it three times, interior as well as exterior. Richard doesn't haul pigs anymore but he has been seen around Sun City carrying an Indian motorcycle.
